Helped Prepare Way For Invasion

BLOCKBUSTERS ARE RAINING in unprecedented numbers on Nazi war production centers and on the great traffic arteries and munitions depots in Western Europe. By day come formations of American Fortresses and Liberators; by night come the heavy-load carrying British Lancasters and Halifaxes. This picture shows RAF armaments on an English airfield bringing up an 8000-lb. bomb for loading into the Lancaster, waiting with its bomb doors open.

Revolution Scouts Court Of Awards

Mrs. Taylor Turner Makes Presentation Speech; Scout Badges Awarded

The Revolution Girl Scouts held their last meeting of the summer on Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock in the club room in the apartment house.

The meeting was opened by giving the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag of the United States. The color bearers (Jaynell Martin) color guards were Ernestine Leonard, Margaret Haynes. The troop standing at attention then made the girl scout promise, after which they sang, "The Star Spangled Banner."

Twelve badges were awarded scouts on work completed since the last court held in December.

Mrs. Taylor Turner, assistant leader, made the presentation speech, and the following badges were given:

2nd class badges were Bonnie Moore and Martha Haynes; Cook's badge: Elizabeth Ann Rhodes; Verna Hodson and Margaret Haynes; Hostess badges: Ezler Brady, Margaret Haynes, Rachael Hussey, Mary Smith, Grace Smith, Verna Hodson and Elizabeth Ann Rhodes.

Mrs. Steele, leader, discussed with the girls work they may do at Day Camp toward badges and the gardening and canning girls may do during summer days at home.

Games were played by the troop, and then a Dixie cup was served by the leader, assisted by Rachael Hussey and Raymond Jeanette Brown.

Miss Pearl Wyche and Miss Josephine Shankle were visitors.

Russell Rich Visits Relatives Here

Third class Petty Officer Russell H. Rich, gunner's mate, U. S. Navy, and his wife, the former Miss Doris Dick, have returned to Maryland after an eight day visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Rich, 193 Huffine Mill road, and Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Dick, of the Burlington road. They also visited many of their friends while here.

Petty Officer Rich and his wife returned to Bainbridge, Md., where he is stationed as an instructor. A former employee of Revolution Mills, he joined the Navy last August, received his training at Bainbridge, and has been stationed there as gunnery instructor since.

White Oak Pre-School Clinics Held

Thirty-four pre-school children were examined by Dr. Elizabeth Ellis in the summer round-up Monday and Tuesday of this week. Thirty-six were vaccinated for smallpox; fifteen doses of toxoid were given by Mrs. Blanche Lamb of Greensboro Nursing Council. Volunteer workers assisting were Misses Helen Thornbro and Mary Bett Ward. Parents of children who did not get to the clinics are asked to have the family physician examine and vaccinate their child before school opens in September.

Frank Bain Jr., spent Wednesday in Durham.

Mrs. James Crutchfield and son, Norman, are spending a few weeks in Knoxville, Tenn.

Correction—

Due to an error, the names of Harry Stutts and T. O. Ward were omitted from the list of Cone employees who have recently completed Job Instructor Training sessions. These two men were members of one of the first groups to take the training and their names should have appeared with the others in last week's issue of this paper.

Sunday School Class Meets

The Fidelis class of the Revolution Baptist church will meet Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock with Mrs. Carson Ritter on Maple street.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

Some of the country's industrialists have been working so hard for so long turning out war goods that they haven't had time to visualize how the armed forces were using them. They will get to find out first-hand this Summer.

They will become "soldiers-for-a-day" in various Army camps, under sponsorship of the War Department's Industrial Services Division—eating regulation rations, wearing G. I. uniforms and participating in training maneuvers.

The Georgia Cotton Manufacturers' Association, and the Associated Industries of Georgia will visit Fort Benning—some 200 of them.

The South Carolina Cotton Manufacturers' Association, 100 strong, will visit Fort Jackson, S. C.

The Wisconsin Manufacturers' Association, Automotive Council for War Production and some members of the Minnesota Employers' Association and the Michigan Manufacturers' Association will visit Camp McCoy—some 500 in all.

The Indiana Manufacturers' Association and the Associated Industries of Kentucky—some 250—will visit Fort Knox, Ky.

Legislative tightening of the purse strings of Government agencies is winning Congressional sanction, with conferees of the House and Senate Appropriations Committees approving an amendment to the Independent Offices Appropriation Bill which restores to Congress some powers over executive department expenditures.

The amendment, by Sen. Russell (Dem., Ga.), strikes directly at agencies of the Government created by executive order and affects more than a score of bureaus. Bureaus or agencies set up by executive order or without authorization of Congress would have to obtain Congressional appropriations for continuation after one year's service.

Dr. H. C. Lennon Speaks To Revolution Community Club

The Revolution club held its regular meeting Friday, June 2, in the club room. Miss Myrtle Ellen LaBarre, State publicity chairman, was introduced, and she told of the work of the Woman's Field Army of American Society for the Control of Cancer. Following Miss LaBarre, Dr. H. C. Lennon, pathologist, spoke on "Cancer, Its Symptoms and Cure." This nation-wide cancer program is to educate the public, for there are many new cases each year, the majority of which prove fatal.

Dr. Lennon said, "Cancer can be curled if the danger signs are recognized and a capable physician consulted." The public is warned of those self-styled specialists who by magic or near magic can cure cancer, for it is only by the removal of the infected area can a patient be restored to health. "Cancer," Dr. Lennon said, "is not hereditary, contagious or infectious, but is a growth of 'wild' cells already in the body." Dr. Lennon urges every one to have a thorough physical examination every year. It is said that one out of every ten persons die of cancer, which is our greatest enemy.

Y. Pageant Presented At Local Schools Is Success

"That Freedom Shall Not Perish" By COLLIER

Mr. Moir Ayers Was In Charge Of Directing Pageant Given Here

The Y.M.C.A. Centennial Pageant "Youth United" was presented to audiences of considerable size at the Proximity school auditorium, Monday, June 5, and at the Cesar Cone school Tuesday night, June 6. Approximately one hundred people from the schools, Y.M.C.A. and community made up the cast. The performance was under the able direction of Mr. Moir Ayers.

Scenes depicting the founding of the Y.M.C.A. in London, June 6, 1844, the beginning of the Association in the United States, the Y.M.C.A. in the Civil War, the first World War, the present World War as a USO unit, and the beginning of the work with Colored people was enacted. The climax of the pageant was reached in the final scene "The Youth of The Future" in which all the cast assembled on the stage in one big colorful finale.

The cast was as follows: Joe Yank: Donnell Stoneman; Mr. Citizen Goodwill: Rev. J. H. Smith; The Spirit of The Future: Miss Virginia Smith; George Williams: Frank Squires; Captain Sullivan: Billy Patterson; Bishop Eastburn: Carrell Russell; Dr. Lyman Beecher: Warren Leonard; Bishop of Methodist Church: Bradley Faircloth; Speaker: James Frye; Chauncy Langdon: William Leonard; George Foster Peabody: Quince Caviness; Julius Rosenwald: Ormand Spivey.

Others who appeared in scenes of the pageant were: Dickie Weaver, Robert Ratliff, Leroy Britt, Talmadge Yates, Bobby Ward, Lawrence McDaniels, Donald Marshburn, John Lee Tippet, Wallace Thornton, Paul Shores, Earl Hipp, Alfred Smith, Bobby Moore, Charles Thompson, Wilbert Hawks, Barbara Newton, Helen Gordon, Ruby Lee Hayes, Ruth Moffitt, Hubert Hulon, Herbert Scott, Raymond Billow, Douglas Kincaid, Winifred Lowe, Lonnie Woody, Albert Jones, Eugene Scruggs, Olin Johnson, Clarence Oakley, Betty Lou Bryant, Carolyn Royster, Marie Kenney, Mary Smith, Dorothy Moore, Rachel Leonard, Beatrice Duggins, Betty Jean Haislip, Marion Ferguson, Doris Vanidore, Pete Faircloth, Tommy Russell, John Scott, Ray Gregg, Jimmy Yates, R. ### Their Success Can Be Underwritten

The invasion of France has come. The Allies' armies have done what Hitler, with all his might and glory, was afraid to try. When we realize how long the nazis prepared for their war of aggression and what a comparative short time the Allies have been engaged in war preparations, the significance of our invasion in northern France assumes greater proportions.

Whether Hitler could have successfully invaded England will forever remain problematical. Some authorities feel that he could have been successful, whereas others are doubtful.

The fact remains that the Allies have invaded France by crossing the English Channel, and there is not a question in our mind but what the journey to Germany will be successfully accomplished.

Just what resistance will be met on that journey, we are not able to say. However, we are not optimistic enough to believe but that the going will be rough and bloody.

It would indeed be wonderful if the people of Germany would see the handwriting on the wall and suddenly give up, but that is too much to hope for at this time, and our military leaders must figure on the worst possible type of resistance.

Our soldiers, marines and sailors will really be tested, but we have no fear but what they will measure up in every respect.

We back home can do more than just pray for their success and their safety. We cannot at this time fall down on our obligations. They deserve every minute's production that we can get out for them, for through our production their success can be underwritten.

As we have repeatedly stated before, the length of the war will, to a large measure, be determined by what we have already produced and by what we will produce from now on.

Anxious mothers, fathers, sweethearts and friends all over this country are bowing their heads in prayer. We, who fit in at least one or more of the above mentioned categories, must become more determined to do more and more to save the lives, limbs and minds of our fighting men. Those of us who have been somewhat indifferent and have permitted selfishness to more or less control our mode of living and our attitude toward work and those of us who have continuously done all that we could should all resolve to do even better. Our very best is none too good during this crisis.

We, therefore, urge a rededication of ourselves to the cause of our boys. They have proven that they are superior to the axis manhood. They have been our instruments in proving that a free people are superior to dictator-controlled people. They will carry on. We must carry on.

Attendance Contest

Here are the percentages for the third month of your attendance contest. Right now we can't brag on our attendance record, but let's get to work on those weak spots so we can do some bragging next month.

Proximity has just four departments with better than ninety percent attendance. Carding, first shift; Dyeing, first shift; Dyeing, second shift; and Shipping. Second shift Dyeing will take the attendance flag with 95.6 percent attendance for the month. And that is good.

Over at White Oak there are only three Honor roll departments. Carding, first shift; Dyeing, first shift; and Dyeing, second shift. The prize goes to first shift Dyeing.

Print Works has only two departments with less than ninety percent. Why not make it unanimous next time? The Engravers have the best record and will display the attendance flag for the next month.

Revolution Napping, second shift, has the highest percentage in the Company with 98.40 percent. Congratulations to Overner Luther Blackwood, second hand, Ronald Steele and the men of that department. Dyeing, first shift, and Dyeing, second shift, are next highest in the Company. Carding, first and second shifts, are both above ninety percent. Too bad about those low departments boys.

The flag for the best will go to

QUOTES OF THE WEEK

"We want to get going, get it over with, and get home."—American corporal with invasion forces in England.

"Choose your Hun: there won't be enough to go around."—Underground's message on walls in France.

"I do not believe Government should take on the responsibility of providing jobs. It can do so in an emergency, but Government never seems to know when an emergency ends."—John M. Hancock, co-author of Baruch-Hancock report on postwar.

"The people may not be fully informed on all the complexities of any given issue, but that does not stop them from having opinions."—Dr. George Gallup, on his polls.

"It was my most precious possession!"—Joseph Davidson, of Chicago, reporting theft of his alarm clock.

"It is essential that the enterpriser, who assumes risks that cannot be measured in advance of bold activities, have before him the opportunity of making a profit."—Emil Schram, pres. N. Y. Stock Exchange.

"Nobody steals money out here—but boy! you gotta watch your laundry!"—Lt. A. F. Rinehart, of Yakima, Wash., in Solomon Islands.

In 1943, 500 million yards of cotton textiles were exported by America. This year more than 900 million yards will be needed for foreign markets, according to the War Production Board.

TIME TO BUY YOUR BOND OF VICTORY

This is it.

The zero hour all over the world. The big push we've waited for so long.

This is the time for belts to be worn tighter. For pockets to be scraped. For every last American to wring more dollars out of himself than he thought he could spare!

The U. S. Treasury needs $16,000,000,000 right now! $6,000,000,000 from individuals alone. That's more than $100 in cash from every wage-earning person in the country! We're going to have to double what we did last time!

Just to show you the seriousness of this drive, our Government says—It's probably the biggest effort we'll ever be called upon to make!

Don't fail the boys who've got the dirtiest, bloodiest fighting still ahead of 'em.

Buy Bonds as if the battle depended on YOU! FOR IT DOES!

Back the Attack!—BUY MORE THAN BEFORE

ON SHAGGY RIDGE, 5,000 feet above the New Guinea jungle swamps, Australians make themselves at home after driving out the Japs. This was a key point in the drive to Bogadim. For weeks the Japs held to this pinnacle and delayed the advance of Aussie infantry. Fine cooperation on the part of American Air Force bombers and some accurate grenade and rifle work by the Aussies finally turned the trick.

W. O. Baby Clinic

The White Oak Baby Clinic held its first meeting in the clinic house on 16th street, Wednesday. Brenda Kennedy, from Hubbard street, and Raymond B. Wheeler, from Vine street, came for the first time.

Others present were Julia Brafford, Jimmie Reese, Sharon Hill, Gene Rhew Benton Pegram, Jerry and Wayne Michael, Mary Ann Roberts and Donald Trolinger.

Rev. Baby Clinic

Those present at the Revolution Baby Clinic, Wednesday afternoon, were Maurice Johnson, Linda Falk, Donna Martin, Linda Barbour, Joy Lane Freeman, Mary Ann Jones, Molly Apple, Brenda Apple, Ronnie Seagraves, Richard Seagraves, Jesse Hobbs, Roger Hobbs, Roger Harris, Arnold Hudgins, Gary Hudgins, Freddie Newnam, Donna Newnam, Jean Sams, Julia Sams and Michael Sams.

A simple dirndl-skirted style. In coy pink, it shows up as a petticoat dress, one of the coming season's hits. As a sophisticated brown and white print trimmed with lingerie bows, it's all set to shine on city streets when warm weather comes, for a cool appearance during the dog days.

In appropriate colors and designs. Balloon cloth is also widely used for blouses, kerchiefs, and neckwear.

surplus on hand for civilian use. Printed and plain, balloon cloth is appearing in all the important collections of clothes and accessories for this year. Dainty floral designs of English inspiration, polka dots, coin dots, stripes and wallpaper floral stripes, as well as border prints and clear, bright colors and pastels were "naturals" for balloon cloth.

Of course, it's proved a favorite for playclothes of every type in all its variations, and in its striped incarnation, turns up as a two-piece bathing suit with matching playsuit to go over it—and a skirt of plain balloon cloth in the same color to turn it into an entire costume. Edged with ruffles around the portrait neck and short sleeves and on the dipping front peplum. Balloon cloth gets set to play hostess, go visiting or step out with "that man home on leave".

It appears as a junior girl's dress in a floral-and-eyelot print, accented with eyelot bands around the square neck and sleeves. Striped red and white, it adds flattering white frills on pockets, sleeves, and round neck to "pretty" up

Author Shelly Smith Saved From Japs Says To Buy More Bonds

Shelley Smith, researcher for Life Magazine, is the wife of Life's famous photo-reporter, Carl Mydans. With her husband, Mrs. Mydans went to Europe at the outbreak of the war in September, 1939, and covered the warfronts there. In 1941, the Mydanses were sent to the Orient, where they covered the Sino-Japanese war from Chungking and the Chinese front lines and the Allied preparations for the Great Pacific war in Burma, Singapore and the Philippine Islands. When Manila was occupied, January 2, 1942, the Mydanses were interned by the Japanese. They have recently returned to America.

If we do not believe in this war we cannot win it. If we do believe in it, and in the freedom and equality of all men, we must put at least our money if not our lives into it.

When a Japanese soldier goes to war he is told to forget his father and his wife and his children. He is sent out to die for his Emperor and not to look back. When our boys go over they remember their homes and they fight for them. That is because we are Americans and have had a glimpse of a warm life in a free world.

We must remember our men and build the world that they are fighting for.

I have seen Filipino women risk their lives to help American prisoners of war. They love luxury as much as we do; and I have seen them go without their pretty clothes, their movies, their entertainments, their homes, their children, their food—to help Americans. American civilians are not asked to risk their lives for their soldiers. But American women can go without luxury to win this war decisively and to bring back our boys from the prison camps before they starve to death.

If we do not believe in this war or in the world we can build after it, then let us send the world to hell—and our soldiers with it. If we do believe, then let us put everything we've got into winning the war and the peace. Every cent we have must go to back our country in this war. We must buy our quota of bonds, and then buy extra ones. Extra Bonds may win the world for freedom.

"The high cost of 'cheap money' would make a good headline."—Lewis Haney, Prof. of Economics.

Balloon Cloth Headliner For Year

Speaking of cottons, the headline fabric for 1944 is balloon cloth. This fine cotton has so many good qualities that, while originally ordered for barrage balloons, textile manufacturers will doubtless keep on making it for clothes and accessories after hostilities cease. It has great tensile strength (58 pounds for both warp and filling) and is made of evenly spun combed yarns. Fuzz is removed by singeing and all sizing taken out so that the cloth has a smooth, even texture and excellent drapability.

That's why the Army's release of this cloth for civilian use created a fine flurry in the fashion world. It was a windfall for converters and cutters-up who were frantically searching for substitutes for the fine combed-yarn cottons of which the war had deprived them. Only three or four yards of this fine cotton are required for a dress, whereas 2,000 yards are needed for one barrage balloon!

How did it happen that there were four million extra yards of this exceptional cotton cloth on hand? Well, about a year and a half ago when the threat of air invasion on both coasts was making the country nervous, the War Production Board requested mills to produce as much as three million yards monthly for barrage balloons. Production, says the Cotton-Textile Institute, actually exceeded 2,500,000 a month. This quota was reduced when the fear of enemy attacks from the air subsided and when it seemed improbable that we would have any air invasion in this country, the Government released the four million yard

PACKING THE SUMMER LUNCHBOX

Encourage the workers in your family to eat adequate lunches even though the weather is hot. They are expending the same amount of energy doing their jobs as they do in other seasons—their food requirements are the same.

Pack lunches that provide energy and stamina, and chances are they won't tire so quickly nor find their spirits lagging because of the heat.

Something Hot
An appetite will soon wear thin on a consistently cold lunch diet, so don't neglect the thermos bottle in the lunchbox.

Tempt appetites with clear, thin hot soups that won't seem too "winterish." Such soups as clear tomato soup, chicken or beef broth, and strained vegetable soup.

Hot cocoa or chocolate may also rescue an appetite from summer doldrums if put in the lunchbox thermos occasionally.

Something Cold
Many soups are delicious cold as well as hot, so send them along in the lunchbox chilled too.

Chilled tomato juice and fruit juices (grapefruit, orange, pineapple, apple, grape) will slake thirst on a hot day and provide a delicious appetizer in the lunchbox.

Then too, there are an endless variety of iced beverages such as minted tea, spiced coffee, fruit ades, and the like to whet a dull appetite.

Have all foods such as salads, sandwiches and meat thoroughly chilled before they go into the lunchbox.

I want the new, tiny, hidden radiators I've read about, and a heating system that minds itself—but I want miles and miles of bookshelves so I can bring all the old friends down out of the attic—yes, even "The Little Colonel" and "Anne of Green Gables!"

I'd like the last word in kitchens, with a postwar refrigerator—the kind that's going to have running ice water and all sorts of gadgets—and every other convenience that the mind and "know-how" of industry may devise and produce. But I want a garden of old-fashioned flowers and morning glories over the trellis.

I want to keep the old things that give meaning and continuity to living. But I want to refresh the embellish the past out of exciting postwar thinking.

The best of the old and the best of the new—that's my idea of what the future should be, for me and for America.

THE POCKETBOOK OF KNOWLEDGE

Note Cloth

by Picker

A doctor and an attorney were arguing over the virtues of their respective professions.

"I don't say that all lawyers are crooks," said the doctor, "but you'll have to admit that the legal profession doesn't make angels of men."

"You're right," answered the lawyer. "You doctors certainly have the better of us there."

Modesty gets approval, and advertising usually gets results. McDonald's just happened to be the wrong kind.

This is a funny world. Its wonders never cease. All "civilized" people are at war. All savages are at peace."

We saw the other day that Rome had been declared an open city. We suppose the Germans kept just running troops through it to show how open it was.

Pat to Drug Clerk: "I want an empty bottle."

Clerk: "Five cents, unless you want something put in it. In that case it's free."

Pat: "All right. put a cork in it."

box so they will retain their freshness longer.

Something Fresh
It's a cinch to include something fresh every day with War Gardens so plentiful. Cut carrot strips, cauliflower rosettes, celery curls, trim radishes and cucumbers; make the pieces of these fresh vegetables small enough to fit into paper cups (the kind with lids which you usually fill with salads for the lunchbox); place the raw vegetables in the paper cup allowing room for an ice cube on top. The ice cube will help keep the vegetables crisp and fresh until lunch time.

An occasional fresh tomato, quartered and with salt on the side, tastes good to a hungry worker.

Whenever possible, fresh fruit should be included in the lunchbox each day. Fruit can be made into a salad, mixed for a dessert cup, or it can be left whole properly prepared for easy eating.

Something Sweet
Sweets are quick energy foods and most often are saved by the worker for a mid-afternoon snack when energy is at low ebb.

Hard candies and refreshing mint patties are best suited to the summer lunchbox.

"Pack A Lunch That Packs A Punch"

This is the name of a valuable 8-page booklet chock full of lunchbox suggestions including a week's lunchbox menus. A copy will be sent free upon request. Just write to the General Electric Consumers Institute, Dept. GN, Bridgeport, Conn., asking for the booklet "Pack A Lunch That Packs A Punch."

Home Patterns Plus Cottons Rejuvenate Shabby Looking Rooms

Now is the time for all good homemakers to come to the aid of down-at-the-heel rooms and make the inside of their homes match the gayness and freshness of the real outdoors.

Both stores and decorating magazines are full of fascinating suggestions on how any amateur can rejuvenate a room or a house all by herself. The problem has been solved simply by a whole group of home patterns brought out by the Advance Pattern Company, which anyone can follow. Among the types of things one can get patterns for are: swagged valances—ruffled, cascade, shirred end, and double swag with looped fabric tiebacks, slipcovers for three types of wing chairs, and Lawson, boudoir, and barrel, club, armless and open arm chairs; daybed covers and pillows—one style with full ruffled flounce, one with inverted corner pleats and square bolsters, another with bias inset corners and round bolster, and one with kick-pleat corners and three tailored cushions; covers for ottoman and dressing table stools; table covers; patterns for sofas and loveseats—Lawson club, Chippendale and Duncan Phyfe; shirred and box-pleated vanity skirts. There is even a pattern for a bassinet, and soon there will be several designs for lampshades.

Complete directions for every step are included in the envelope, so there's no longer any reason to be shy about cutting into a good piece of fabric, and making home a place that war-weary husbands, fathers and sons will love to come back to.

While Army and Navy demands have cut into the variety of fabrics obtainable for home decoration, those to be had are interesting in design, clear and sprightly in color, report the Cotton-Textile Institute and National Cotton Council. White glazed chintz, for instance, bordered with violets in their natural shade with green leaves and also in red and in yellow flowers is one of the temptations that's hard to resist. A hunting scene printed on sturdy cotton sailcloth is a new documentary toile. New and modern at tomorrow are patterns of large cacti and palm leaves or giant daisies on cotton homespun. Adaptable to modern or traditional decoration is a stylized leaf-and-plain stripe on cretonne, a woven striped twill, a multi-color satin striped chintz. And for period rooms with a modern feeling there is a documentary rose on glazed chintz or twill, a lovely new tulip pattern, and a number of beautiful floral designs with an etched quality about them.

Fine plain shades in cotton slipcover and drapery fabrics are still to be had, and there are many ways in which dress cottons may be adapted to home use. Checked gingham, plain or glazed, is one of the favorites with professional decorators who have achieved some charming Colonial and French Provincial effects, often edging it with eyelet embroidered batiste.

Don Herold Says:

AMERICA'S WAY
Raising a country is something like raising children.

I want my children to have spirit. I want them to be free, happy, independent individuals. I want them to live their own lives—not to be carbon copies of me.

That means I must not try to keep them in the nest too long. I must let them learn to fly, though they will have some falls that will hurt them and me too. I must leave them alone a lot.

Of course I want my children to realize responsibilities. I have to give them a little guidance and discipline—but not nearly as much as my instincts dictate. I could pester them to death with directions if I didn't hold back. All these things may be right, too, for a government and its citizens. Shall a government encourage its citizens to have spirit and to be individuals? Shall it let them learn to fly? Or shall it produce a nation of mama's boys, scared to let go of its apron strings?

Let's buy more war bonds during the Fifth War Loan drive.
